Dear Mr. Mazzoli:

Thank you for your note of 4 June. The Director and I have found the working breakfast sessions with Congress most useful and will strive to continue them as long as we have a willing audience. I think it provides an excellent opportunity for us to respond to your concerns in an informal, though hopefully satisfactory manner.

I have checked with our Office of Logistics people who are responsible for preparing the design of the new building and they have assured me that the firm of Vosbeck, Vosbeck, Kendrick and Redinger, Inc., (VVKR) along with their two associated firms, is receiving full and equitable consideration in the selection of a design firm for our new building. We attach great importance to this program and are doing everything practicable to ensure that we get the best product possible. We have had successful dealings with VVKR in the past and are taking that experience into account during our deliberations.

We appreciate your interest in our new building and undoubtedly over the next few years will have considerable conversations with you and the HPSCI on that project.

With best wishes and regards.

Sincerely,

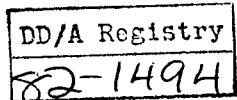

John N. McMahon

Dear John -

I enjoyed being with you and Mr. Casey at the breakfast yesterday morning. I hope these can be scheduled periodically, because they are a very pleasant way to get some business done.

In connection with our brief conversation at the close of the meeting, I just want to be sure that my friend, Bill Vosbeck of U.V.K.R.

Inc. of Alexandria — the only local architectural firm in the competition to design the new CIA Building — has received a full consideration to be awarded the final architectural contract.

So long as Bill's firm has a full chance to make its case, I'm not concerned about which firm is selected to do the architectural work on the new building.

Keep up the good work, John.
All best wishes
